About

Using the 100 day MCAT Study Schedule, Nymeria went from the 30th to the 90th percentile on the MCAT. This schedule is an updated 2022 edition of Nymeria's original program. We recommend reading her article here about the original plan. For the 2022 edition, we removed outdated materials and added new content and practice tests recommended by most of the Student Doctor Network community.

The Health Professional Student Association, a nonprofit organization, publishes the Student Doctor Network. Members recommend the study schedule materials; no product or service pays to be in this plan. Purchasing through the links above supports our nonprofit organization.

100 Day MCAT Study Schedule

2022 Edition

How to Use

The schedule requires a full-time commitment, working 8 hours a day to complete it. Therefore, we recommend reading through the schedule before your start date to ensure that this schedule matches your study habits and learning style. (If you have more or less time to commit to this schedule, consider using our donor-supported service: studyschedule.org. Your user information is private; it is never sold or shared.)

Each day you must complete both the reading and practice problems. We have also provided supplemental materials to reinforce complex concepts and corresponding chapters in the Kaplan Review series when the primary text is from The Berkeley Review. The schedule rotates through a different subject every day while emphasizing daily practice problems. Concepts you learned earlier in the schedule will continually be reinforced using this technique. We will walk you through the materials that this schedule incorporates.

Berkeley Review Series will serve as your main text to learn the content before drilling practice problems. In addition, we distribute practice problems from each chapter over the entirety of your schedule to continually reinforce topics you previously learned.

Kaplan Review Series – the only required text is biochemistry, and the rest are optional. We provide corresponding chapters in the Kaplan Series if you need further review.

BluePrint Psychology and Sociology – you will complete this after your content review for psychology/sociology practice.

UWorld – this will serve as your central question bank. We highly recommend reading the explanations for each question, even if you get it right! You may start on tutor mode, but we recommend transitioning to timed practice as soon as possible. You will notice that you will have completed >2,000 UWorld questions by the end of the schedule while the UWorld bank is ~1800 questions. When you run out of new questions, create sections using questions you previously got wrong.

Khan Academy – Previously scheduled to go offline in 2021, students showed enough interest that the AAMC and Khan Academy will keep these free videos available until 2026. Awesome!

Hat Trick – Get a hat and write every single MCAT topic found in the official AAMC content outlines onto a piece of paper. Then, when you're ready to practice a topic, place all of the specific topics into the hat. Next, draw two or three pieces of paper and connect the topics. In addition to connecting them, come up with what a passage might look like and what kind of questions you might get. If you can't do this, go back and review each of the three sections. Rinse and repeat.

AAMC Official Study Materials – these are the most important practice materials you will complete. You will complete all of the practice problems released by the AAMC by the end of the schedule.

Full-Length Tests – We have scheduled 7 of these throughout your schedule. Please take them as if you would a real test. Prepare a snack and lunch and complete the tests in a quiet environment.
